Summer days are meant to be spent with the ones we love, and so are summer nights. Cocktails on the porch, hikes at dusk, sushi on patios—these are the things my husband's and my summer date nights are made of. Our stolen moments are just as important to us as our well-planned ones are, simply because we're together for them.

April Masini of the critically acclaimed Ask April advice column explains why these dates are so important. She says, simply, "Show your partner how much you care and how committed you are to the relationship and the romance by making time to be together."

That's really all there is to dating your partner any time of the year. And yet, there's something about summer nights that create the perfect backdrop for swoon-worthy dates. Six women share their favorite summer date nights. Each and every one is as swoon worthy as you'd expect.
