

Home Beauty & Style Love & Sex Pets & Animals Home Living Food & Recipes Health & Wellness Shopping

You are here : Home » Love & Sex » Tips for bringing your guy home for the holidays

Tips for bringing your guy home for the holidays

We asked April Masini, relationship and dating expert behind the AskApril.com advice column and author of Think & Date Like a Man, for some dating advice on getting through the holiday season conflict-free when you bring your guy home for Christmas. "Going home for the holidays with a significant other can be difficult," she says. "But there are ways to get around these potential differences and conflicts to make a holiday visit more pleasant than it might be."

Be realistic

Your parents aren't perfect — nor is the rest of your family. They have flaws just like everyone else (including you) has flaws. "You're not going to have a recognizable version of a Norman Rockwell painting at holiday time," Masini says. "If you expect anything different, you're going to be disappointed, so be realistic about what can or cannot happen at the holiday time visit."

Lower your expectations

Don't expect Christmas dinner to go off without a hitch. Does it ever? Expect that someone will try to engage you in an argument or insult you or your partner (hello, annoying sister-in-law). You might not like it, but as Masini says, "This is real life." If your parents or other family members have a habit of picking fights at the dinner table, don't assume they'll be on their best behavior just because you brought your boyfriend with you. Expect the usual rants and you won't set yourself up for any nasty surprises.

Let go of anger

When those barbs and insults come flying — directly or veiled — don't go on the defense and don't attack back, Masini advises. "In fact, the best way to take someone's power to hurt you away from them is to step out of the way," she explains. Practice saying things like, "I know things are tense, but I'm just glad we can all be here together." A statement like that can help neutralize the tension around you. If things get too heated, and you find yourself aching to fight back, leave the room. Excuse yourself and take a walk to calm down.

Don't pressure yourself

Avoid putting too much pressure on this one visit. "Think of this visit as one in a series of visits that will occur over the years," Masini says. "If you have to cut this visit short because it's too tense, be understanding and see the glass as half full. At least you made it through two of the four day visit!" Not everything will go perfectly just because it's

ENTERTAINMENT & CELEBS

Britain's got talent: 2012 BAFTA winners

6 Man movies you will likely get dragged to this

Charles Barkley wants some NBA fans shot

Movie review: This Means War

Khloe Kardashian explains again why she

Grammy performers announced: Kelly

CutieHetty, 21

Most Popular Articles

Bring back the romance this Christmas Make the

the holidays.

Pretend you're elsewhere

Old habits die hard, so this year do things a little differently. "Don't use your same old manners. Pretend you're visiting a family you don't know and for whom you would use your best manners," Masini advises. "Bring a gift to your hostess, offer to do some of the cooking, clear the table. Treat your family the way you would guests and raise the bar a little." You never know how a simple shift in attitude can change how you interact with your family for the better.

More relationship advice

His family or yours: Where to go for holiday dinners

Seduce your husband all over again

Love Happy: Cooking up some romance

Related Articles

Bring back the romance this Christmas

Make the most of evenings Once the kids go to bed, take some time (at least 30 minutes) to reconnect. You might be tempted to turn on the TV and sit ... Read More

Mall-free gift ideas for your guy

Photo wall Choose 10 to 15 photos that really represent your relationship. They can be of the two of you at various points in your relationship (but not all the photos ... Read More

5 Creepiest gifts for him

Forever Lazy Soft Fleece Lounge Wear Nothing says, "Here's what your future with me looks like, and it ain't pretty" like the aptly named Forever Lazy Lounge Wear. It's the evolution ... Read More

Leave a Reply

Name (required)

Mail (will not be published) (required) most of evenings Once the kids go to bed, take some time (at least 30 minutes) to reconnect. You ... Read More

Website

Mall-free gift ideas for your guy

Photo wall Choose 10 to 15 photos that really represent your relationship. They can be of the two of you at ... Read More

Beyoncé and baby dine together in public

Beyoncé is looking relaxed and confident as new mom to Blue Ivy Carter. The singer was reportedly spotted breastfeeding her ... Read More

Movie review: Journey 2: The Mysterious Island

I was expecting a fun time when I went to see Journey 2: The Mysterious Island, but was doubly excited ... Read More

Vintage baby names Vintage baby names are the hottest trend for today's hip parents. In fact, one only needs to look at the ... Read More